

Main aims of workshop

To raise awareness about Conservation Biology, which is still not recognized as a science in the region, and estimate potential for knowledge sharing

Key background and justification for the workshop

The basic theme of the symposium is an assessment of current stage and role of conservation science in the region, participation in the conservation biology various players such as academic institutions, biodiversity conservation societies, community groups and individuals and their role in the further development of conservation science, public awareness and education.